Honorable Prime Minister A.B. Vajpayee,

I feel an immense sense of grief at the loss of life and property, and by the destitution and distress caused by the communal violence that has occurred in the state of Gujarat since February 27th 2002. As you have sworn to abide by and protect the Indian Constitution, I am calling on you with the following demands:

- Take swift action and ask for the harshest possible punishment in accordance with the law against all those guilty of provoking and/or committing the violence—including those belonging to the Sangh Parivar.
- Provide immediate assistance, both material and psychological, to people affected by the riots and equitable and just compensation to the victims.
- Cease and reject with immediate effect the politics of hate and bigotry. Stop negotiating and conferring with openly sectarian organizations like the RSS, VHP, Bajrang Dal and other Hindu or Muslim fundamentalist groups and embrace the secular values enshrined in the Indian Constitution.

Sincerely,
